A group of malleable substances used to sculpt and build

Tips to keep your clay from drying out

1. Place leftover clay in a large plastic container or bucket that has a lid.
2. Fill the clay bucket with air temperature tap water until all the clay is completely submerged.
3. Replace lid firmly or cover opening with thick plastic sheeting and let sit for a week without stirring.
4. Check clay after approx. 5 days. Test this by digging your fingers into the clay. If it feels thick but like melted ice cream, it's ready.
5. Lift the bucket and drain excess water into the sink.
6. Stir clay up until consistently thick before removing from container onto a kneading board.
7. Wrap clay tightly in thick plastic or store in plastic container with air tight lid until needed.

Clay

- There are different types of clay: modelling, paper, air dry, oven bake and kiln clay
- Modelling clay comes in a variety of colours and doesn't dry out
- Paper clay is very lightweight and easy to mould
- Air dry clay dries naturally at room temperature
- Oven bake clay must be put in an oven to harden
- Kiln clay must be fired at 1100-1200°C in a kiln
- Clay can also come in natural forms of white earthen wear and terracotta
- Leftover clay should always be stored in an air tight container

Dough

- It is a modelling compound used by young children for art and craft projects at home and in school
- Dough is soft to mould with, and never dries out
- Available in an assortment of colours, including skin tone shades
- Cream of tartar allows you to make your own dough!
- Use our range of modelling tools to create different shapes and textures in the dough

Kinetic Sand

- An easy to shape sand that moulds well and has motion
- 98% pure sand, 2% Polydimethyl siloxane, a silicon-based organic polymer that gives kinetic sand its fluid like movement once pressed by your hand
- A great sensory activity for children
- It never dries out therefore continuous play for hours
- Available in natural or an assortment of colours

Plaster of Paris

- Plaster of Paris is suitable for producing moulded figures, or whatever you wish from latex or other plastic moulds
- Mixing is simple – just add water and mix to a creamy consistency
- Dries naturally at room temperature, then can be painted on
- Comes in powder form or plaster rolls for modelling around wire
- Great for the whole class to work on to create their own unique designs
